

Product Name:

Traditional Jingdezhen Qingbai Porcelain Tableware

Product Background:

The traditional Qingbai porcelain tableware from Jingdezhen is made from kaolin. A pure transparent glaze is applied to the white porcelain body, producing high-whiteness porcelain (English: White Porcelain). Historically, Jingdezhen's traditional porcelain is known as "Yingqing" and "Qingbai." Tracing back to the Northern Song Dynasty, the Hutian Kiln in Jingdezhen was a significant site for Qingbai porcelain production. Qingbai porcelain features a high degree of whiteness in its body, with a glaze that reveals a faint bluish tint in thicker areas, creating a harmonious interplay between blue and white. Hence, Qingbai porcelain has poetic names like "Yingqing," "Yingqing" or "Yingqing," with English names being "Qingbai" or "Bluish White." Historically, the Song Dynasty's dining culture was elegant and simple, with tableware showcasing minimalistic and refined aesthetics.
